No Signboard Seafood

Almost 30 years ago, Madam Ong Kim Hoi first started a small stall selling seafood in Mattar Road Hawker Centre. She relied on her food for the advertisement rather than a signboard. The word about the stall with no signboard that served impeccable white pepper crab has spread its fame today to its sixth restaurant outlet in Venetian, Macau where it has become a snazzy eatery drawing gamblers to bet on how fast its crabs sell out each day!

And, remaining faithful to its origin, No Signboard Seafood restaurant stays true to its roots by concocting homemade recipes infused with flavours from the past.
